Dr. P. (Dominique Padurano, M.S., Ph.D.)

Workshop Description

Building School-Centered Relationships: A Workshop for Students & Parents Aged 12 and Up

No matter where they attend, students who connect with mentors and peers flourish at college while those who do not often flounder. Nevertheless, young people aren't often told this tidbit – let alone instructed in how to do that. In this workshop, Dr. P., Dominique Padurano, a former high school teacher and now President of Crimson Coaching™, an elite tutoring firm, teaches students and their parents a variety of techniques to help students initiate and nurture relationships throughout the middle and high school, as well as college settings to foster their long-term success. If this workshop is delivered in person, students must be accompanied by a parent. In any modality, students and parents are encouraged to bring: (1) a pen or pencil; (2) a notebook; and, (3) an open mind.

Speaker Bio

Dr. P., Dominique Padurano, M.S., Ed., Ph.D., founded Crimson Coaching LLC in 2014 to provide families and students with the academic, organizational, and emotional tools they need to soar through school and life. She tutors students worldwide in a variety of academic subjects; for standardized tests like the SAT and ACT; and while writing their college application essays. A full-time high school teacher for more than a decade, Dr. P. has also taught as an adjunct assistant professor at CUNY since 2015.
