Workshop Description

Organizing Spaces and Materials:

Take Control of Your Backpack, Take Back Your Life!:

A Workshop for Students Grades 6-12 and Their Parents

As young people progress from elementary to middle school, through high school and on to college, academic demands mushroom. An inability to keep track of deadlines, handouts, homework and completed assignments can impede their scholastic success more than any difficulties mastering the subject matter.

In this workshop, certified teacher and President of Crimson Coaching™, an elite tutoring firm serving Westchester County and the New York City metropolitan area, Dr. P. (Dominique Padurano, Ph.D.) teaches students a variety of techniques to organize their academic lives. She also guides parents through how to effectively monitor and assist their children at home as they experiment with these new strategies.

Speaker Bio

A classroom teacher of Social Studies for over a decade, Dr. P., Dominique Padurano, Ph.D., founded Crimson Coaching LLC in 2014 to provide students with the academic, organizational, and emotional tools they need to soar through school and life. She works as an academic tutor, test prep and college application essay coach of students around the globe. Dr. P. is currently writing a study skills book for teens based on her years of coaching them on how to get organized entitled, Soar Through High School and Beyond: The Essential Guide to Managing Time, Organizing Stuff, Studying Wisely, Staying Healthy and Having Fun.
