

Crimson Coaching™

Prepare for the May 7 and June 4 SAT with Dr. P.

When? Sundays, February 13 – May 1, 5-6pm EST (10 meetings; no meetings 2/20 or 4/17) plus one, 50-minute, 1-on-1 session with Dr. P. (a $250 value)

Where? Zoom

For Whom? Juniors and advanced sophomores (taking Algebra II or the equivalent now)

How many? Between six and ten students

How much? Work, that is. In addition to weekly course meetings and your one 1-on-1 session with Dr. P.*, students can expect between two (in the beginning of the course) and four hours (during the last three weeks, when we'll do three full-length SATs on our own) of homework per week.

How much? Money, that is. This course costs $750 (payable via Venmo, Zelle, or credit card).

With what? Required Course Materials Supplied by Student:

- Princeton Review SAT Premium Prep 2022
- Notebook used just for the SAT Prep course
- Pen / pencil
- Graphing calculator used for school

Optional Course Materials Supplied by Student: The Official SAT Study Guide (students may also find and print out the SATs found in this book from the College Board website)

Why bother? Many colleges are test-optional for 2022, but you generally have a better chance of getting accepted if you do submit SAT scores – and many scholarships require them. Plus, you'll also learn important long-term planning, critical thinking, and relaxation skills in this course.

Questions? Email me to register or with any questions about the course. (To figure out whether the SAT or the ACT might be right for you, watch this webinar.)
